Current Comment

"It is time for 'pot-bellied middle age' to get off the throne and give youth a chance," suggests Rollo Walter Brown in his article, "The Crime Against Youth," which appears in the current issue of Atlantic Monthly. And a thorough perusal of his remarks reveals that Mr. Brown has made some sound observations.

Pointing with scorn to the class in whose hands now rest the reins of control, and whom he all-embracingly terms "middle age," Mr. Brown finds that their philosophy of lazy-mindedness and body comforts rests on a huge foundation of frustrated youth. He cannot be entirely wrong—in fact, this writer heartily applauds the theory.

With thousands of keen minds annually disgorged by our institutions of learning, "middle age" hangs on and directs eager, efficient youth to bide its time. "Be good," they say. "Don't kick over the traces, and some day you, too, may be able to take a wife, join the country club, and perhaps fall heir to a swivel chair."

Says Mr. Brown: "We have an overabundance of solid captains of industry and bankers who cool-headedly invent high-sounding terminology for newly devised dishonesties. We are cursed with level heads. We need a great influx of lopsided youths. . . . If a youth believes too much, very well. If he is enthusiastic to the verge of craziness, all the better. . . . we must get out of the dead-center habit of mind, whatever the initial inconvenience."

The reluctance of "middle age" to hand over the world's problems to youth is apparent and easily comprehended. They have built for themselves a civilization altogether to their liking, and they have no intention of letting young blood and new ideas upset the tranquility of their existence. "Middle age" has the upper hand. They intend to keep it.

The "overwhelming tide of youth" (one of "middle age's favorite platitudes) is singularly ineffective against the rock-bound coast of that same "middle age." Every move of the latter class is designed to strengthen the dikes—to hold back the flood at all costs. But the time is rapidly approaching when youth will become discouraged to the point of revolt. Then, and only then, will we see the dam burst and the world emerge from the chaos into which the stupidity and caution of "middle age" has thrust her.

"We have an overabundance of well-balanced administrators and members of national commissions," says Mr. Brown, "who consume vast stretches of months in an effort to conceal their befuddled thinking, and then at last arrive at the startling conclusion that much remains to be said on both sides of the question." How astute the observation! How generally true it is!

And this in a country that teems with eager, impatient, shrewd, demented, enthusiastic, dizzy youth which grows increasingly restive at the barrier. It is time to start the race—to give youth its chance, let the chips fall where they may. No greater mess can be made of world affairs than has already been concocted by the selfish philosophy of "middle age."

Kiwanians Hear More, Proposed County Charter

The local Kiwanis club heard an interesting talk on the proposed county charter and the conditions which led to the proposal of the plan, by Guy R. Kinsley, field manager of the taxpayers organization of this county.

He stated that 1913 was the last normal year to be enjoyed hereabouts, and that various happenings have made each subsequent year abnormal. By petition already filed by the required number of voters, the county board is asked to call an election for 15 freeholders-at-large who will be chosen to draw up a charter for the new form of county government.

This form, Mr. Kinsley stated, would bring about a more direct home rule, permitting a more rapid change in county laws than under the existing system. "Within a few days," he said, "we will know whether the election can be held on June 27 as petitioned. In the meantime, candidates for freeholders are being discussed."

Next Monday Campbell Kiwanians will meet at San Jose with that club, and will furnish the program. Rev. C. E. Irons will be the speaker.

10 To 11 O'clock Services At Local Church In June

The Rev. J. H. Bennett, pastor of the Congregational church, announces that on the first Sunday in June the time of morning services will be changed from 11 o'clock to 10 o'clock. He plans to combine the time of Sunday school and that of the regular service. The children will have their lessons in the Sunday school rooms at the same time the sermon is in progress.

This change of time, designed to give church-goers more time for their own plans, will be tried during the month of June, and if successful, will be carried throughout the summer.

"In Days of Gold," Title Fiesta de las Rosas Presentation

Lotta Crabtree and the colorful days of old, days of gold! San Francisco in the 60's is the setting of the annual Fiesta de las Rosas play to be given in San Jose on Thursday and Friday nights, June 1 and 2.

The play is aptly titled "In Days of Gold," and is the work of the dramatist-poet, Anna Norma Porter of San Jose. The fast-moving story of love and intrigue, shooting and escape, centers about the sun-lit plaza typical of San Francisco in the 60's. The play throughout has a poetic quality, with many lovely lyrics. Ably directed by Arthur Cyril, the large cast of three score or more includes many of the talented amateur actors of the valley, cast here as vigilantes, gamblers, miners, dancers and the like.

"The Days of Gold" will be one of the highlights of the 1933 Fiesta season in San Jose, and in keeping with the times, will be given at "movie" prices. Tickets may be secured from Sherman, Clay in San Jose or at the Theodore Roosevelt auditorium either night of the play.

MARIONETTES HERE FRIDAY, MAY 26TH

This Friday evening, May 26, at 8 o'clock, a marionette show, "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," will be staged in the Campbell union grammar school auditorium. Four short numbers will accompany the feature.

The show happily combines wholesomeness for children and interest to their parents. Candy is to be sold during the evening and the tickets for the show can be purchased at the door.

Group 2 of the Congregational guild sponsors the affair.

THE FARMERS CORNER

By Ralph H. Taylor

Some able student of California politics, if he possessed both candor and a caustic pen, could render an exceedingly worthwhile service to his state just at this period, by writing a "Sacramento Merry-Go-Round", or a "Mirrors of Sacramento", based on the recently recessed session of the state legislature.

There is little doubt that the book would duplicate the spectacular success of the Washington revelations, at least within the confines of California.

And if the expose were fairly written, as well as brilliantly written, both voters and legislators would be better for it.

Without being unfair to the legislature, which has produced its good works along with the bad, it is not an exaggeration to say that the session just ended was undoubtedly the most chaotic and disappointing in more than 20 years, both to the people and to the legislators themselves. The fact that popular government faces a crisis throughout the world, with a threatening trend toward dictatorships and overthrow of representative control, makes the California situation the more challenging.

Balancing the legislative ledger, agriculture, as an industry, has little cause for complaint, insofar as routine farm bills are concerned. The farm program, for the most part, was adopted. And bills dangerous to the farming industry were, in most instances, rejected.

California agriculture, at this time, however, has far more at stake in general legislation than in ordinary farm measures. The economy and tax reduction issues, the motor carrier-railroad dispute (left unsolved), the banking problem, budget-balancing and a dozen other major questions are all of vital concern to the farmer, as they are to citizens generally.

And agriculture, which battled for years to gain the urban-rural balance of power in legislative representation, now in full effect for the first time, also has a deep concern in seeing that it operates successfully and is not misunderstood by an uninformed electorate.

Having this two-fold concern, the legislative session was a sad disappointment to California's statewide farm organizations, despite the fact that the lawmakers treated farm bills kindly.

On the bad side of the ledger might be listed: Complete breakdown, during the final weeks, of the final weeks, of the "economy bloc", permitting adoption of hundreds of thousands of dollars in "pork barrel" appropriations, either in additional budget items or special bills. Failure to get within striking distance of balancing the budget, although the lawmakers should be given credit for a $12,000,000 reduction in the budget. A seemingly hopeless tangle on the taxation question, except for the Riley-Stewart plan, as amended, which seems to be the best available compromise. Inability to adjust the war between railroads, various motor truck interests and the shippers.

Steam-roller methods and "star chamber sessions" on many vital issues; an excess of personalities, recriminations and investigations; lack of leadership and lack of interest in "the other fellow's problem" were other shortcomings all too evident.

Looking at the other side of the picture, many conscientious legislators, earnestly trying to do a good job for their constituents, found their "people" selfish in their demands, or apathetic except where they were personally involved. They faced the hopeless situation of voters demanding economy and special benefits in the same breath.

Public and legislators are equally responsible for the chaos which resulted in many instances. And no session, more than the one just concluded, has so completely shown the great need for reawakening of public interest in popular government—a realization of individual responsibility which will make for better legislators and better legislation.

At the risk of being considered preachy, California government needs a new birth of tolerance and human understanding and an application of the old-fashioned Golden Rule. But it may require candid and caustic diagnosis to bring it about.

Time and again I am told—by my own organization and by others—that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives—he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,—all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car—but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"—the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

Tire Prices may never be so Low again!

GOODYEAR certainly makes it worth while for you to put money in tires
now. Your dollars never bought tires to equal the quality, the safety, the mileage which Goodyear is today building in every tire wearing the Goodyear name—

And because Goodyear now concentrates on two main lines of tires—a real saving in costs is passed on to you.

Look at present prices of the world's most popular tire, the Goodyear All-Weather—and the prices of the thrifty Goodyear Pathfinder—and you'll certainly agree, it's smart to buy Goodyears NOW—while prices are still down close to bottom, and your money buys more than it may ever buy again.

While government costs
—electric rates

go up

go down

1921

Here are three interesting pictographs. Every taxpayer should give thoughtful consideration to the timely facts they show.

Every citizen is paying a great deal more for the support of government today than he paid twelve years ago. Of the money you pay for electricity, 11 per cent is tax money for the support of government.

Increase in cost of government has been far out of proportion to the increase in population.

But the kilowatt hour cost of electricity in the home is lower today than ever before.

General living costs are even today 28.5 per cent above the Pre-War Level of 1914; electricity for the home is 25 per cent below that level. Electric rates trend steadily downward. They are still 53.5 per cent lower than general living costs.
